3. Bidder Question:

When I scaled your pdf file provided to all vendors during the Job walk-through, my dimensions on the inside of the supervisor area was 120". Please confirm the dimension of 120" which appears to be an inside dimension. Could you please confirm outside dimensions including wall thickness.

Courts Response:

The diagram indicates that the wall of the workstation that would be next to the new file system is 144 inches deep and the distance from the wall to where the system would start is 120 inches. A typical panel would be 3 to 4 inches wide.

We did receive a question about the load factor during the job walk. We do not have this information but do have floor plans that can be given to the successful bidder and they can have their structural engineer read and determine this information. It is the Project manager understanding that this information is not needed to submit the bid.
